Short-stories, essays, and epic poems inspired by interviews with hundreds of individuals around the world are brought together in this huge volume. Shocking, astounding, insightful, and sometimes sad, we see ordinary people expressing their concerns as we enter the Obama age. Their voices are authentic voices; their stories are authentic stories. If you want a snapshot of what people really think about upon a myriad of topics--no holds barred--then this is the book for you. (591pages)
